

Public Power Week

Public Power Week is a nationwide annual event held the first week of October.

This event—which began in 1986—is led by the American Public Power Association in Washington, D.C.

KPUD will celebrate this tradition October 2 through with new and interactive events.

Have you ever wondered what affects energy use, where it is used, or what you can do to use less? This year's celebration of Public Power Week brings energy-savings solutions to customers by offering winter weatherization and rebate workshops. The workshops offer money-saving ideas in weatherization techniques, behavioral changes and new technologies.

If you are interested in saving energy and money along with investing in the environmental benefits of conserving energy, watch for the upcoming schedule of events on our website and Facebook page.

Call your local KPUD office to schedule your spot in one of the workshops, as spaces will fill up fast. Participants will receive a free energy emergency kit to get them started saving.

There will be daily activities for kids, too—from interactive power safety and energy-saving shows and games to becoming Junior Power Posse members. They also can take the power pledge to help stop energy waste in the home.

We will continue the campaign for Operation Warm Heart. Information and sign-up prizes will be available all week.

We look forward to seeing you during the festivities for classes, prizes, snacks and fun. Please contact our Energy Services Department for more information (509) 773-7622.
